

Unforeseen turn of events – approx.. Sept. 2005

It was a lengthy OBE, during which I was very conscious.

I found myself in a certain building, made up of various different rooms. I flew through this building, looking down on the rooms, and was keen to leave some kind of proof that I had been there, while OOB. That was my 'mission'.

The experience involved a lot, but I want to mention a certain part here; I at one point saw a big bookcase, situated against the wall I was approaching, in one of the rooms. I decided to move towards it, and when I hovered above it I decided to try and write something on the top of this bookcase. While contemplating how to do such a thing (I was OOB after all!), I noticed that other things had already been written on the surface. This surprised me. I also noticed some crayons, somewhere close-by. In the end I decided to use one of these crayons to write with. But what to write .... ??

Now, this is the (I think) interesting part: I ended up writing 'BOO'. Don't ask me how I came up with this ... when out of body you often do something in a spontaneous fashion, without actually (with your consciousness 'here') knowing why. But that's what I wrote. I was all in favour of this 'word', although I didn't even know where I had gotten it from, and believe I didn't question this either, at the time.

Only, I just couldn't come up with anything better/more suitable at the time.

When thinking about this word as an option to write down, I linked it to a cow; to the sound they make. :-). But in fact (as I realised only after waking up), the sound they make is not 'BOO', but 'MOO' !

It was only a while after I had had this experience that I suddenly realised - through something which triggered me to think back to this experience and make a certain link with this word I then wrote down - that 'BOO' is 'OOB' spelled backwards!

I thought that was a wonderful realisation and a magical thing!